Art Unit: 3632

This is the third office action for application number 10/631,272, Method and System for Temporary Attachment of a Container to a Vehicle, filed on July 31, 2003.

The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on March 1, 2005 has been entered.

Election/Restrictions

Claims 2, 3 and 5-8 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected species or invention, there being no allowable generic or linking claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter that the applicant regards as his invention.

Art Unit: 3632

Claims 1, 4 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Regarding claim 1, it is not completely clear if the vehicle is being positively recited as part of the invention or not. The preamble recites the vehicle functionally ("for securing...to...a vehicle..."), but then the vehicle is recited positively in the last paragraph ("wherein at least a portion of the cushion is positioned between the magnet and the exterior surface of the vehicle..."). The applicant must make it clear whether the vehicle is being recited positively or functionally. For instance, stating --is adapted to be positioned between...-- and --comprised of a material that is adapted to substantially resist scratching...-- would recite the vehicle merely functionally, and the Examiner will assume this is so for the purposes of this office action.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

Claims 1 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent number 3,524,614 to Sorth in view of U.S. Patent number 5,491,621 to Duty.

Sorth '614 discloses an attachment device (above) comprising a holder (1), a magnet (4) that is connected to the holder (via 5) wherein the magnet is of sufficient strength. However, Sorth '614 fails to specifically teach a cushion to be connected to the magnet wherein at least a portion of the cushion is inherently adapted to be positioned between the magnet and an exterior surface. Nevertheless, Duty '621 divulges an attachment device (figures 1-4) including a magnet (38) with a rubber cushion/boot (42) wherein it is specifically stated that the rubber cushion/boot is for preventing the magnet from scratching or marring the panel of a car (column 3, lines 18-21). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the magnet of Sorth '614 so as to have a rubber cushion/boot connected thereto as in Duty '621 which would inherently be positioned between the magnet and the exterior surface of a vehicle so as to prevent the magnet from scratching or marring the panel of a vehicle.

Art Unit: 3632

Claim 4 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sorth '614 in view of Duty '621, and further in view of U.S. Patent number 4,844,400 to Jasmagy, Jr.

Sorth '614 in view of Duty '621 disclose the previously described invention wherein the holder is a cup with a sleeve connected to a circular bottom (above), wherein the sleeve has top and bottom ends, but fail to specifically teach the sleeve to be a conical sleeve with a top end having a greater diameter than a bottom end. Nevertheless, Jasmagy, Jr. '400 divulges an attachment device (figures 1-3) including a conical sleeve (12) having a top end with a diameter greater than that of a bottom end. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the sleeve of Sorth '614 in view of Duty '621 to be a conical sleeve with a top end with a diameter greater than that of a bottom end so as to allow for a greater number of various sized containers to be held in the holder of the attachment device.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed March 1, 2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1, 4 and 9 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

The declaration under 37 CFR 1.132 filed March 1, 2005 has been entered and considered but does not overcome the rejection of claims 1, 4 and 9 due to the newfound secondary reference of Duty '621.
